PLAY YOUR PART

Lymm High School is backing a community-led initiative to create a Performing Arts Centre in Lymm.

Exciting plans have been unveiled for a new Centre for Performing Arts in Lymm to be used by local schools, community and the surrounding area of south Warrington and north/east Cheshire.

The aim is to build a new Centre for the Performing Arts, to be based on the high school site and used primarily by schools during the day, and by the community at evenings and weekends.

Initial plans would see the facility having a 450-seat theatre/performance space which could also be adapted for smaller events; drama and dance studios; rehearsal rooms for music; a recording studio; and some flexible space for meetings and exhibitions.

Kieran Walshe, a governor at Lymm High School, is chairing a working group set up to lead the project.

He said: "We've had great support – on our working group we have senior councillors and officials from Warrington Borough Council, representatives from schools and the Lymm Festival, and Andy Carter our local MP. We are always looking for people who want to get involved!"

Over the next three months, the working group is holding an online consultation, and meeting with all groups and organisations who would like to have their say about the proposed development. The findings will be used to put together the case for funding – which will need local authority and government support.

Kieran Walshe said: "We do not underestimate the funding challenge – but now, as we emerge from this awful pandemic, is a great moment at which to think about the kind of future we want for our community – and how important the performing arts are to us all."

For more information, visit the website at www.lymmperformingarts.org.uk where you can find out more information, offer to help with fundraising and have your say on the plans.

LYMM HIGH SCHOOL A WORLD CLASS SCHOOL

Staff and students at Lymm High School are celebrating after being officially designated a 'World Class School'.

Our school was invited to apply for the World Class Schools Quality Mark (WCSQM) and we are extremely pleased to announce Lymm High School is one of just 12 secondary schools to have been successful in receiving the prestigious accreditation this year.

WCSQM is a UK charity that works to accredit the best non-selective state schools across the UK with the World Class quality mark accreditation. Specifically, it is concerned with developing the skills, competencies and characteristics that young people need to thrive in an ever-changing global economy.

According to the charity, the starting point for applications is that schools "have a track record, data and evidence, internal and external, that indicates at their next Ofsted inspection they would be deemed 'outstanding' by Ofsted".

However, a lot more than this is required for a successful bid. The arduous process involved a team of Year 12 students (ably assisted by Mr Hayes, Head of Halls and Ethos) spending weeks compiling a comprehensive report to demonstrate how Lymm High students are 'World Class'.

This involved looking at a wide range of areas, including things like: how highly literate students are scientifically and culturally; the extent to which students are excellent 'life-long' learners; leadership, including student leadership; preparation for higher education and future careers; and links with other countries and organisations. The students also had to put together a video to illustrate how a typical week at Lymm High School facilitates the development of world-class learners.

Mr Hayes said: "The student team did an incredible job of leading the application process and are themselves a prime example of why Lymm High School students are 'world class'."

Mr Williams said: "This is a significant achievement and we are all very proud of what it says about our school community. Particular thanks go to the students who did such a fantastic job of leading this bid."

The students involved in the project included Ciara Bennett, Evie France, Beau Harry, Thomas Lea, Emma Parkinson and Jack Powell.

As part of the process, they needed to work with a partner primary school.

"Working alongside Sacred

Heart Primary School really showed us the value of communication and teamwork. Working as the research analyst I spent a lot of time listening to feedback from different schools and coming to a group decision everyone could be happy with", said Thomas Lea.

"This experience was a real eye-opener", said Jack Powell.

"It taught me the intricacies of communication and teamwork and was a golden opportunity for everyone involved. It was really great seeing everyone working as a team especially considering the wide range of skills needed."

Evie France was Project

Manager: "I was given the opportunity to lead an amazing team. Working with a primary school on this final project challenged me and enabled me to gain valuable skills."

Being a WCSQM school will open up some great opportunities for both staff and students over the next few years.

Having the accreditation gives the school access to the WCSQM framework that will help all students to develop and demonstrate world-class skills and characteristics across areas including learning, leadership, community and the workplace.

"The values of the organisation very much align with our own in terms of working to make sure that students leave us not just with excellent academic qualifications but also as well-rounded, socially responsible young people equipped with the knowledge and skills required to thrive in the modern world", said Mr Williams.

'Being a WCSQM school will open up some great opportunities for both staff and students over the next few years.'

SCHOLARS MAP OUT GRAVEYARD HISTORY

Students from the scholar's programme have continued their excellent work from last year creating a catalogue of all graves in the graveyard at St Mary's Church, Lymm.

The project, which began as part of our Founders' Day celebrations last year will help people find the graves of relatives – including those dating from past centuries. Many are very old; some inscriptions are very difficult to read and the location of some is also uncertain. This makes it difficult for people looking for the graves of relatives – particularly old ones they might be seeking in researching family trees, etc.

Students worked with Reverend Beverley Jameson from St Mary's, to clearly identify and catalogue the graves in the graveyard. The aim is to eventually present a catalogue to Reverend Beverley, including print-outs of locations together with names and dates of the deceased. Leading the project was Associate Assistant Headteacher, Mrs McGahey who said: "It is a great example of our students contributing positively to the local community. They have given up their own time and Lymm High School is very proud to have been able to help the local church in this way."

"This has been an invaluable service to the church helping the bereaved locate their loved ones", said Rev Beverley. "Such well-behaved, courteous and hard-working young people, I'm proud to be a Governor of Lymm High School".

SUMMER CONCERT

Parents were treated to a spectacular showcase to celebrate the end of the academic year when our young performers put on a summer concert of music and dance.

The annual event at Lymm High School gives students the chance to showcase their talent in playing instruments, singing and dancing in front of family and friends.

The audience were treated to the LHS String ensemble performing Love Story by Taylor Swift.

Directed by peripatetic tutor Mrs Leighton-Jones the Lower School String Group also performed.

The LHS Brass band, led by Mr Wyss, played The Entertainer by Scott-Joplin as well as other pieces.

Year 12 dancers, Lottie and Ellie also impressed the audience with a 3-minute performance set to Libertango.

Lymm High School's Head of Music, Mr Starkey said:

The talent of our students never ceases to amaze me, but it's also about hard work. These performers put in a great deal of effort and commitment over the weeks, months and years to get better and better.

From relative beginners to accomplished musicians, it's very exciting to see talent developing and to see students' confidence grow the more they perform in public."

RUN 4 PATRYK

Huge congratulations to Mr Pickles and his son Lucca, who successfully ran 4km, every 4 hours for 48 hours during the last week in May.

Both Mr Pickles and Lucca took part in the challenge to raise funds for The Patryk Milner Memorial Fund which aims to raise funds to enhance the sporting opportunities and development of those in the local community including those in the Mini & Junior section at Sandbach RUFC.

The tragic death of 7-year-old Patryk Milner on 2nd October 2020 shook the whole community.

The event managed to raise over £41,000 – a fantastic achievement!

THEY HIKED TO HELP

After their 320-mile 'Hike to help', our three Year 11 students safely made it to the Emirates stadium in London.

Adam, Kristian and Reece set off on 5th June from Cantilever Park in Latchford, in honour of a lifesaving incident Adam and his dad witnessed, and finished at Arsenal's home ground, which is the team supported by a family friend who recently took his own life.

The hike was in aid of MIND, a charity that provides advice and support to empower anyone experiencing a mental health difficulty. So far, the students have raised over £7250 for the charity and their JustGiving page is still open if anyone would like to donate.

You can read the full story behind the hike in our last issue of the newsletter by clicking here.

Well done lads!

Congratulations to all our students who have successfully completed our Upgrade programme in English and Maths this year!

PRETTY OARSOME

Former Lymm High School student Lucy Glover has fulfilled her Olympic dream, flying out to Tokyo to join the GB Rowing Team.

Lucy is in the stroke seat of the Women's Quad Scull and their first race is planned for 23rd July at around 2am UK time.

The 22-year-old was introduced to rowing through a Project Oarsome partnership between Lymm High School and Warrington Rowing Club. She won a silver medal for GB in the European Rowing Championships this summer, and has gold and silver medals in the World Championships at U18 and U23 levels.

Currently, Lucy is based at Edinburgh University where she is studying for a Psychology degree.

"My dream of competing at the Olympic games has been within me ever since I was lucky enough to be introduced to the sport of rowing through Warrington rowing club's strong links with our School", said Lucy.

"I feel so fortunate to be able to represent Lymm High School on the biggest sporting stage of them all and I hope to do everyone who has helped me along the journey proud."

Mr Williams, said: "On behalf of everyone at Lymm High School, we wish Lucy and her team the very best of luck. Knowing just how hard she has always worked and how much this means to her, she thoroughly deserves any success that comes her way – and we all hope that she'll be able to bring a medal home to show off to us all in school!"

ART & DESIGN EXHIBITION

Lymm High School artwork goes on display online at an end-of-year Art and Design Exhibition.

The popular LHS art exhibition has been launched for 2021, with the Covid-19 pandemic forcing it online.

Earlier this month, artwork by KS5 students went on public display with staggered appointment times to allow a small number of parents and carers the opportunity to view this year's work from our next generation of young artists.

However, the much larger GCSE Exhibition – which is normally open to parents, family and members of the public - required a different approach.

Head of Art and Design, Mrs Taylor said: "Sadly, due to current government guidelines, we are unable to hold our annual Year 11 exhibition at the school this year,"

"We have created a platform where you can view our usual high-standard of student artwork from the comfort of your own home, giving artists the opportunity to showcase their work to a broader audience."

"We hope that you enjoy our exhibition, and we look forward to welcoming you back to school, when we return in 2022."

It's all About STEM

KS3 Club is all a go!

It has been brilliant to be able to run the STEM club in this final term of school. Students have continued to shine as they explore robotics and think about creating one from scratch. As they consider the key features of a robot we've had some excellent questions, such as what do you think needs to be built first: eyes, wheels or the grab crane?

If you haven't managed to get involved this term then do watch out for September as we will hopefully see the return of a bit more normality including our year-round STEM club!

Daresbury Laboratory Success

Higher up in the school we are so pleased to see one of our Year 11s gain an elite place for work experience with Daresbury laboratory. With nearly 800 people applying for around 50 places, Joseph Chadwick saw success and we hope he has a brilliant week working with the software engineers at Daresbury. Well done Joe!

YEAR 7 PRESENTER SETS SIGHTS HIGH

Reuben Roberts is a sports correspondent for Lymm Radio's Kids Live at Five show every Sunday at 5pm. He tells us how it all started.

I have been talking about sport on the radio for over a year now. It started by accident really. We had heard about the radio station being set up in lockdown and contacted the station to tell them about the things we were doing to support each other and our neighbours.

I was then asked if I would like to do more for the radio. I said 'Yes' and asked if I could talk about sports because sport is a big part of my life.

So it grew from there.... Each week I would either talk about various sports stories or I'd do an interview with a sports-related person. My first interview was with a cricket coach who had developed a cricket game to sell over lockdown. I was really nervous as it was over Zoom and I had not done anything like that before. Kirsty James gave me a great piece of advice which was to smile when asking the questions. I found this really helped.

At first my dad helped me to edit the interviews, but now after loads of practice I know how to do it by myself. I have had some amazing opportunities this year to interview lots of different people including Olympian Ghazanfar Alli ..... We talked so much that a 2-minute interview turned into a 45-minute one. He was very interesting. I have even had the pleasure of interviewing our very own Mr Mason from the PE department. I have also interviewed a lot of my friends about the sports they do. One of my highlights has been appearing on Granada Reports where it was my turn to be interviewed!

I'm hoping to visit Granada Reports to meet the sports journalists there. My dream job is to become a Sports Scientist or an Astronaut but maybe I could also be a sports reporter after doing all of this. the latest issue, click here.

WINNING AT WORDS

This year's Lymm Festival organisers asked local poets to share their thoughts on the theme of 'Freedom' and were delighted with the variety and quality of entries received.

There were two categories for entries: ages 11–15 and ages 16+. Lymm High School student Libby Dobson in Year 8 was the overall winner of the 11–15-year category with her poem 'On the ward'. Joshua Calder (Year 8) and Esme Nevitt (Year 10) were runners up with their entries 'Freedom poem' and 'On the way'.

Miss Turner, our Head of English, represented the school on the judging panel (anonymously of course!) and was impressed with the high standards that were met by the students in both age categories.

"Their interpretations of 'Freedom' were truly inspired and demonstrated how mature and thoughtful some of the individuals are in both Lymm High School and the wider community. I thoroughly enjoyed judging the poems alongside the other panellists!", she said.

Well done to all the winners and the students who took part. Throughout the online Lymm Festival, the organisers' favourite poems were read daily by Sue Dodd and Fr. Michael Burgess.

You can hear them all by clicking here.

Here is a selection from our talented students.

'On the Ward'

Lily Dobson

Lifeless bodies lay in each bed,
Machines monotonously beeping next to each one.
Dozens of medical staff watching over them;
Checking vitals and charts, machines and medicine.

Small stacks of masks and gowns stood guarding each door.

Reminding them why they were here;
Why they were fighting,
Who they were fighting for.

Every 3 or 4 hours people left,
And others entered.
Those leaving, escaping the fear and uncertainty
beyond the doors;
And being free from them for the next few hours.

Those entering, getting ready to help their patients fight for their lives;
So they could get out of this place,
And to their families again.
Hoping they could do the same.

And be free from the wards...

'How I Want My Life'

Holly Franklin

Free from the suffocation of covering your face,
even if you keep your space,
Free from living a life where you can't walk further,
than the little red post-box on the corner,
Free from weekly zooms with your family,
as we all know they end in calamity,
Free from constantly staring at the same ceiling,
with that longing feeling,
Free from the laws,
that are keeping you indoors,
Free from your laptop teaching you Spanish,
when it knows much less than a radish,
Free from kicking photo frames off the wall,
whilst dancing around like you are at a ball,
Free from only being able to hug your dog,
when your sister is acting like a crazy warthog,
Free from your mums healthy cooking,
that you throw away when she's not looking,
Free from shivering and shaking when you can't feel your finger,
as you're stuck outside in the middle of winter,
Free from alarming statistics on the news,
that crush all your optimistic views,
Free from the stress of shopping online,
whilst hoping it arrives on time,
Free from this chapter in history.

'Freedom Poem'

Joshua Calder

We've been stuck indoors for over a year,
We could only hope that the end was near.
School was closed, and work was too,
But the government did what they could do.
Everything was then online,
(Which didn't even work from time to time).

Some businesses just sadly failed,
Debenhams, Topshop and Harvey's derailed.
Confined to the comfort of our own homes,
We started to feel extremely alone.
No visiting places, family or friends,
Was a surprising, sudden new trend.

We began to appreciate the small things in life,
Board games, jigsaws and box sets were rife,
Our daily walks became such a treat
Fresh air and nature could not be beat!
But now the rules have lifted a bit,
We can go to theatres, and gyms, to get fit.
So go outside, enjoy the sun,
To be out and about again is so much fun.

But as you return to the life you once knew
Remember the lessons that lockdown taught you,
Stop rushing, take your time, look around, be kind
Use freedom wisely, leave no one behind.
You're free to meet up with people you know,
Just make sure you're doing your lateral flow!

'On the Way'

Esme Nevin

Many a sleepless night
Did I spend over callings
Trapped by guilt and obligations
Wanting to be free, after all
What to be called is an important thing
You know?

You see, there's the binary one's
The "default settings"
So to speak
Then there's the ones in between Non-binary and all of those
But none of them really relate to what I'm talking about
You know?

What I obsessed over
The callings, is pronouns
There are many
Although people pretend there are only two
They lie and steal
And yet they draw the line at people being free
You know?

She/her, He/him, They/them
She/they, He/they
Then the neo's
There's too many of them to count
I think I like bun
Bun/bunself
Like a bunny, it's kinda cute!
You know?

In the end,
People will call me what they assume I am
But I like Bun/bunself
Although I don't know
I pretend to with others
The cis
But I'm on my way to being free
Not there yet, just on my way
And that's ok
I know

SUMMER SELF CARE

Looking after our wellbeing has never been more of a priority than it has been this year.

As we start our summer holiday with lockdown restrictions lifting, we encourage you to continue to look after your mental health through the summer months. Even though we seem to be heading back into what we'd see as 'normal' day-to-day, Summer can bring its own challenges for our mental health but also fantastic opportunities to continue to prioritise our wellbeing.

Screen time alert!

We all love the Internet and the endless possibilities of TikTok but be aware of your social media use in the holidays and limit yourself. Do more things that make you forget to check your phone – have a social media 'summer clean' and leave your phone at home if you are going on family days out. Make time to connect with people again.

Explore!

Sometimes it's difficult to get outside even if the weather is beautiful. If you are spending time indoors that's absolutely fine, sometimes we love a film and PJs day, but be mindful of whether you are doing this because you want to or because you're not used to the freedoms we now have. If you are struggling at all, ask for help from those in your family and take time to complete small tasks outside in comfortable spaces

Acts of Kindness!

Doing something positive for others can be a real boost for our own mood too. Think about someone in your life that may need a hand over summer - whether that's helping with a particular job or task around the home, visiting a relative or friend you know has been struggling, or a random act of kindness for no particular reason – take time to invest in the small things and those around you that matter.

Give it a go!

You have 6 weeks without school and 6 weeks of time to be creative, practice a sport, explore, socialise, craft, bake, or whatever it is you enjoy!

Make the most of your time and ask for help if you are struggling with trying something new.

Ask for Help!

Even though summer provides endless opportunities for exploring and experiencing exciting opportunities, if you are feeling overwhelmed or would like to reach out for support there is always someone at hand to help you.

Family, friends and support agencies are there 24/7 if you ever need to talk.

Please see the support pages in our Wellbeing Support Guide to help you.

THE JOHN STEWART MILL CUP COMPETITION 2021

Sixth Form students, Liv Galloway-Pollard, Thomas Lea, Jay Palombella, Jessica Salmon, Amy French and Jack Powell were delighted to receive their certificates earlier this month to recognise their participation in the prestigious John Stewart Mill Cup Competition. Hosted by St Andrews University on the 21st of April, the tournament takes place over a single day and aims to encourage collaborative and productive discourse on a range of issues.

Well done team! You've made us all very proud.

Secondly, I painted and hid some Lymm rocks! My mum set up Lymm rocks a few years ago and with the help of me and my brother and others around Lymm we have managed to share the smiles and love to people who find, re-hide and reshare them. Today, as I walked to deliver my letter to Barbara, I hid some of the Lymm rocks I painted today. Finally, I recorded my links for my weekly radio show on Lymm Radio. Lymm Radio was set up during the first lockdown and everyone who helps volunteers."
